

Restricting Abortion: Ohio¹

In far too many places throughout this country, it has become extremely difficult for women to safely and legally end a pregnancy. In too many states, politicians have enacted laws that single out the provision of abortion services for restrictions that are more burdensome than those imposed on medically comparable procedures, do not significantly advance women's health or the safety of abortion services, and make abortion services more difficult to access. It's time for politicians to stop interfering with women's personal decision-making. We need a federal law that puts women's health, safety, and rights first. The Women's Health Protection Act does just that.

In Ohio, the following restrictions are among those that would be unlawful under the Women's Health Protection Act once enacted:

- REQUIREMENT that abortion clinics have a transfer agreement with a local hospital while also banning public hospitals from entering into those same transfer agreements, burdening them with a rule that is not necessary to ensure patient safety nor required of similar health care providers in the state.²
- REQUIREMENT that forces a woman to wait at least 24 hours and make two separate trips to a provider before she can obtain an abortion.³
- BAN on abortion after viability without constitutionally required exceptions for the woman's life or health.⁴
- RESTRICTIONS on medication abortion that could prohibit physicians from providing individualized, patient-specific care based on their best medical judgment.⁵

"I'm here today to speak in opposition to the continuous assault on comprehensive reproductive health care by our state elected officials and to demand that Ohio politicians get out of my exam room."

- Dr. Lisa Perriera, a physician in Cleveland, Ohio, speaking at the "We Won't Go Back Rally" outside the Ohio Statehouse in October 2013

(Endnotes)

¹ The restrictions highlighted herein are examples of the types of restrictions that the Women's Health Protection Act seeks to invalidate. This fact sheet is not intended as a comprehensive guide to abortion restrictions in Ohio.

² OHIO ADMIN. CODE 3701-83-19(E); OHIO REV. CODE ANN. § 3727.60(B). This restriction was challenged in Preterm-Cleveland, Inc. v. Kasich, No. CV-13-815214 (Ct. Com. Pl. Cuyahoga County filed Oct. 9, 2013).

³ OHIO REV. CODE ANN. § 2317.56(B).

⁴ OHIO REV. CODE ANN. § 2919.17.

⁵ OHIO REV. CODE ANN. § 2919.123.